IMMUNE TO GERMS OF TYPHUS.

Doctor's Mistake Would Have Been Serious But for Good Health.

A man in sound health need fear nothing from typhoid germs, according to evidence brought out at a London hearing of a damage claim by the proprietor of a Malvern "Hydro" against the local council for contaminating his establishment's water supply. Dr. Thresh, one of the greatest English experts on typhoid, was a witness. The bacillus, he said, is so minute that a drop of water may contain a population equaling the entire world.

"I've swallowed millions," he remarked, cheerfully.

"How did you like them?" inquired the judge, immediately curious.

"I enjoyed the pleasure of anticipation for three weeks," said the doctor, "but after that I felt happy. It was an accident, however. I was testing water said to contain typhoid bacilli. The weather was hot, and one day I swallowed a glass of water at a gulp. Too late I discovered that it was a glass into which I had put the typhoid germs. Had my health been such to have made me a good subject, I should have suffered. As it was, I felt no ill effects."

HALLUCINATION A STRONG ONE.

He Was Sure Someone Entered His Room, Although Doubly Locked.

"I was lying in a hotel bedroom one morning," he said, "about half awake when I heard a key rattling in the door. Much to my horror, the door opened and the maid came in to make up the room, or at least so it seemed to me. I called out to her to leave and she did so. All this happened in a minute or less and I fell asleep again. When I woke up I remembered the incident clearly."

"When I came to look at the door, however, I found that it was not only locked from the inside with the key still in, but that a bolt was also shot. I was sure that I had seen the maid enter, but when I asked her later if she had, she said that she had tried the door from the outside and hearing me call out had departed. As far as I can make out it must have been a very complete hallucination about seeing her, called up in my mind in my sleepy condition by my fear that she might enter. I wonder if that has happened to many persons?"

He Understood.

During a financial flurry a German farmer went to the bank for some money. He was told that the bank was not paying out money, but was using cashier's checks. He could not understand this, and insisted on money. The officers took him in hand, one at a time, with little effect. Finally the president tried his hand, and after a long and minute explanation, some intelligence of the situation seemed to be dawning on the farmer's mind. Finally the president said: "You understand now fully how it is, Hans, don't you?" "Yes," said Hans, "I think I do. It's like this, ain't it? Ven my baby vakes up at night and wants milk, I gif him a milk ticket."

A Strong Point Against Him.

"You say you have known this defendant for many years?" "Yes, ever since he was a boy." "Do you consider him to be of sound mind?" "Well, I don't want to say anything against him if it isn't necessary." "But you are under oath to speak the truth. Have you ever observed in his actions anything that would lead you to the belief he was weak mentally?"

"He married the daughter of a poor man when he might have become the son-in-law of a wealthy manufacturer who would have made him general manager of the business."

He Wouldn't Set.

A Washington photographer, now famous, told the other day how, in his youth, he was practicing his art in Cleveland when Mark Twain visited the town to lecture. Impressed with the humorist's splendid features, the photographer, at the lecture's end, sent up a note asking Mr. Clemens for a sitting. The reply that came back was characteristic. It said: "A sitting! Is thy servant a hen that he should do this thing?"

No Cause for Alarm.

"I can't understand my husband, doctor. I am afraid there is something terrible the matter with him." "What are his symptoms?" "Well, I often talk to him for half an hour at a time, and when I get through he hasn't the least idea what I've been saying." "Do not worry any more about your husband. I wish I had his gift."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Prejudice.

"Robert, this spelling paper is very poor," complained the small boy's teacher. "Nearly every word is marked wrong." "It wouldn't have been so bad," protested Robert, "but Anne corrected my paper, and she's mad at me, and for every little letter that I got wrong she crossed out the whole word."—Lippincott's.

Hardships of the Rich.

"They say old Gotalotte was pretty hard hit during the recent panic." "Yes, poor old chap; I'm mighty sorry for him, too. He is so hard up that he can't afford to smoke anything better than three-for-fifty cigars."

GLASGOW'S SLUMS.

An Awful Sleeping Quarters and Its "Penny Pawns."

In the Millgate Monthly there is a description of the "Alsatia of Glasgow"—the Cowcaddens—where "all that is most unsalubrious and repellent in our modern life is to be found." Side by side with all that is demoralizing live and flourish hordes of various kinds and degrees. None is so dangerous to the health of the community as she who night after night seeks to make a dishonest penny by overcrowding her slummy house. Sanitary inspectors find the occupants of overcrowded houses, in their attempt to avoid detection, concealed in every conceivable corner—hidden in cupboards, under beds and even on the house-tops. Two tiers of people have been found in one bed, one on the boards or mattress, the bed then funged over, and another living tier on the top.

What are known as "penny pawns" abound in the district. A broker who keeps one of these can purchase an article of any value from a penny upward. He is compelled to keep it for only seven full days, and at the end of that period he may sell it to whomsoever he chooses, and that, too, in all probability, for several hundred per cent more than he paid for it. Thousands of poor people are entirely ignorant of the difference between a pawnbroking establishment and a "penny pawn," with the result that in many cases when they go to the latter they lose goods which, if pledged with the former, they might have redeemed in time.

A TERRIBLE REWARD.

Cromwell's Payment For the Capture of Pembroke Castle.

During the struggle between King Charles and the parliament Pembroke castle was so well fortified that Cromwell, with all his cannon, could not take it.

After many failures he gave up his intention and began to march on for Tenby. But before he had proceeded far a country shoemaker came up to Cromwell and asked him whether he would reward him if he would tell him how to get the castle into his possession.

Cromwell, very glad of this offer, consented. Then this old shoemaker, glad to get some money, as no doubt he was rather poor, told him that there was a pipe through which they got their water and that if he were to cut the pipe the castle would surrender.

Cromwell said, "I thank you for the information you have given me, but as you have turned traitor to your countrymen the only reward I will give you is that you shall be hanged on the very next tree that I come to."

Cromwell had the shoemaker hanged and cut the pipe he had told him of, leading to the castle, which then surrendered.—London Telegraph.

Made It Clear.

When Colonel Edmund Rice was in command of the Twenty-sixth infantry (mostly volunteers from New England) in the Philippines, he organized from his regiment a company of mounted scouts. To equip them for this service he made requisition on headquarters for the necessary outfit, including eighty nosebags. Some officious clerk in the quartermaster's office in Manila returned the requisition to Colonel Rice with these written remarks: "Your report shows but sixty men in your mounted company. Why do you require eighty nosebags?" The colonel's explanation was short and characteristic. It was: "It is true I have but sixty men, but I have eighty horses. The nosebags are for the horses, not for the men."

Inoculation For Smallpox.

Lady Mary Wortley Montagu is generally credited with having introduced inoculation into England from Turkey. In 1718 she had her son inoculated at Adrianople with success. She was allowed to have it tried in England on seven condemned criminals in 1721, and in 1722 members of the royal family were inoculated. The practice was bitterly opposed by the clergy until 1769. A Dr. Mead practiced inoculation with success up to 1764, and Dr. Dunsdale of London inoculated Catherine II. of Russia in 1768. Vaccine inoculation was introduced by Dr. Jenner in 1799.—New York American.

The Moors of Today.

The Moors of today are the descendants of those who conquered Spain, who were practically paramount in the southern portion for two centuries and relics of whose wonderful buildings are to be found at the present day in that country. Indeed, it is strange to consider the position of the Moors of today when we see the work of their hands in past centuries, and the only explanation lies in the fact that they are unable to adapt themselves to modern conditions.—Strand Magazine.

Crushed.

"Brudder Jones, if you didn't smoke, you might own a brick house, like what I does."

"Look here, man, don't you come pesterin' wif me like dat. You didn't git dat brick house by not smokin'. You got it by borrowin' mah newspaper to read an' mah clothes to wear an' mah vittles to eat. You may be a fly financier, but dat don't gib you no license to set up fer a human copy book!"—Kansas City Independent.

Capital.

"Let me illustrate the difference between capital and labor," said the rich uncle to the impetuous nephew. "Suppose I give you £5"— "That's capital," replied the nephew, extending his hand for the money.—London Telegraph.

Specie A. Williams, age 36, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Williams, died Sunday, March 22, at 10 p. m., from a complication of diseases. The deceased had been in poor health for several years and had traveled in search of health, first in Kansas then to Oregon, Washington and California, but without success. True to a promise given his mother when he left home almost nine years ago, he came home in last November to be with the loved ones the few remaining days of his short life. Specie, as he was known by all, was loved and highly respected by all who knew him. He leaves a father, mother, two sisters and one brother, and a host of friends and relatives to mourn his loss. The funeral services were held in the Universalist Church at Olive Branch Wednesday at 12 o'clock conducted by Rev. Rexford, of Columbus, after which his remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at the same place, under the order of the K. of P. Lodge. We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved family in their great loss.
